

AT ISSUE WITH THE GOVERNOR

Lloyd Begins Controversy
With Willson.

ABOUT THE TOBACCO MATTER

Says His Attitude Causes Disappointment Among Tobacco Growers.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 5.—Prof. Henry Lloyd, a member of the faculty of the State University, who is now in Chicago, and who is a brother of Miss Alice Lloyd, the Joan of Arc of the tobacco growers, has written an open letter to Gov. Augustus E. Willson, in which he takes the Chief Executive of the State to task for seeing only one side of the tobacco question, and that not the side of the people of his own State.

Prof. Lloyd declares that the Detroit speech of the Governor will "produce a feeling of disappointment in those Kentuckians who are concerned in the good name and well-being of our native State."

Prof. Lloyd's letter follows in part: "Your Detroit speech of August 24, as it was reported in the daily press, will produce a feeling of disappointment in those Kentuckians who are concerned in the good name and well-being of our native State. All such will, I think, commend you for the stand that you have taken against lawlessness in Kentucky. Their disappointment comes not from your act of commission, but from your acts of omission.

"The words of a writer upon this subject addressed to a different person are quite pertinent in this connection:

"Thousands of growers in the Burley Society smart with the sense of injustice because of the fact that almost universally the city pulpit and the city press have only added to the burden of those in the society who are making the real fight in that they lay almost exclusive emphasis on the deeds of the violent and misguided element of the society.

"You are increasing their burden while you lend them no aid. Condemn the violent. You should do it. But direct the sympathetic attention of the public to the load they carry. Suggest ways out of the difficulty if none have been suggested of which you approve; otherwise encourage the plans that have been adopted.

There is a close parallel between the Farmers Association and the labor unions. Both are organized efforts to secure justice from organized greed. Surely you would not unqualifiedly condemn labor unionism because of the violence of the strikers and walking delegates? Nor would you leave unmentioned the beneficent features of the union while you berated its violent members. Unionism has done more good than harm, on the whole; then, a union is a good thing for a laborer to belong to.

Will you permit me to recall to you certain facts concerning agriculture in general and Kentucky agriculture in particular that were brought out in the last census in the United States? In round numbers the capital invested in agriculture is $20,000,000,000; in manufacturing $10,000,000,000.

In agriculture the number of laborers employed is 10,500,000 in manufacturing, 5,250,000. In agriculture the horsepower used is 18,000,000; in manufacturing, 11,000,000. But the returns bear no such ratio. If the value, in dollars, of the total product of manufactures in the United States, after deducting for the cost of raw materials be divided by the number of laborers that produce it the quotient is $1.078.

The pool has been demonstrated a success. The farmers have received for two crops of tobacco as much or more than they would have received for three crops—than they would have received under the old rule of trust domination. I say this advisedly, being the son of a grower and having close touch with my father's business affairs. The case of which one sometime hears that seem to discredit this statement, I believe will be found to be exceedingly rare. I know of not a single pooler in the whole county of Mason who will call in question the statement that I have made.

The further reason for pushing the pool is that the tobacco trust is at a far weaker strategic point than it has ever been before. It is known that its supply of raw material is not large and must be replaced at an early date. Hence the feasibility of successful pooling movement has never been comparable to that which exists at present.

I have never discredited or doubted the sincerity of honesty of your motives, but as a citizen of Kentucky I earnestly request that you consider fairly and squarely the facts that I hereby allege, and that you make answer to the questions that I have raised.

A Narrow Escape.

Edgar N. Bayliss, a merchant of Robinsonville, Del., wrote: "About two years ago I was thin and sick, and coughed all the time and if I did not have consumption, it was near to it. I commenced using Foley's Honey and Tar, and it soon stopped my cough and I am now entirely well, and have gained twenty-eight pounds, all due to the good results from taking Foley's Honey & Tar." Obliging the Lady.

"I see you've got an automobile," said Citima. "I thought you swore you'd never buy one?" "Yes, I did say that once," replied Subbuhs. "but our new cook insisted that we must get one because her church was so far away from our house."

"Them as Has, Gits."

"To him that hath shall be given" was well illustrated in the recent Cour d'Alene land drawings. The first prize was taken by a man who registered "just for a lark," nother by a millionaire's son, who is roughing it in the timber to harden his muscles, and so on. The drawings were out of the reach of the thousands of poor deserving men, who are struggling for life in cru congested cities and who ties and who would prize a homestead would prize a homestead as a veritable gift from heaven.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Outlaw's Widow a Revivalist.

New York, Sept. 9.—Mrs. Jesse James, widow of the noted Missouri bandit, has been one of the most religious attendants at the annual Evangelical camp meeting at Ocean Grove, N. J. This fact became known when an ardent woman evangelist dropped dead before the audience of 2,000 persons while leading the prayer.

Among these who went to the stricken woman's assistance was Mrs. James and then for the first time it became known that the aged but enthusiastic little woman who had worked conscientiously for the success of the camp meeting during the last few years was the widow of the much-dreaded Jesse James.

Mrs. James has been living quietly at the religious resort and daily has led the large meetings in song and prayer. At the "love feast," which is a regular part of the daily programme, Mrs. James has recited her personal testimony, telling of the great relief which her religious belief has brought her.

EQUITY DAY

At State Fair—Management
Has Arranged Tent for Headquarters.

We desire to call attention to the fact that the State Fair management has very kindly prepared a nice tent and placed same in position on the State Fair Grounds and given us an invitation to hold same as headquarters of the State Union A. S. of E. during fair week, beginning September 13th to 18th. The Executive Board of the State A. S. of E. have gladly accepted the offer and we now urge that we all bear in mind that Friday, Sept. 17, will be Equity Day. President Cartrill will make a speech and other very interesting features will be arranged, and we kindly invite all our Equity friends, also all tobacco growers, to be present, also those who are interested in Wool and Lambs, in fact all who are interested in agriculture should avail themselves of this opportunity to meet and have a real old fashioned good time and at the same time receive good and lasting benefits by learning more of the grand principles of Equity.

The State Executive Board will also hold a session at the Equity tent on Friday. Now again, we urge that every Equity man and woman in Kentucky avail themselves of this grand opportunity to hear their State President, mix with the cash and also have an opportunity to see the greatest Fair of the season.

Chickens Not Two Cents Each.

The Breckinridge News says: B. F. Beard & Co., have been buying produce for many years but the cheapest chickens were purchased on the last Saturday in August at one and one-third cents each. In fact they thought they were purchasing regular edible eggs and so cased them for shipping the following Monday. An employee of the store was in the building on Sunday when a constant "peep, peep" and chirp caused him to open the case and investigate. In the middle were two healthy young fowls crying for food and freedom. Mr. A. N. Heston took the orphans home and fed them. They are now as active and strong as though they'd had a "sitting hen" mother and an expensive incubator protector.

Kentucky Tragedy Recalled by Suit For Divorce.

Madisonville, Ky., Sept. 9.—As a sequel to one of the most famous tragedies of Western Kentucky, Mrs. Allie Armer, of Dawson Springs, has instituted suit for divorce from W. W. Armer in the Hopkins Circuit Court.

It will be remembered that Armer, who was a Cumberland Presbyterian minister, living at Sacramento, McClean county, went to the residence of Eaves Barrett, a farmer living near Sacramento, during May, 1904, and with a club fatally wounded his seventeen-year-old son, who was working for Mr. Barrett. The son was loaded into his father's buggy and conveyed to his home, where he died, from his injuries. Armer's excuse for the crime was that his son would not stay at home. Armer was tried and pleaded insanity. He was sentenced to 21 years in the State prison. One of the pathetic scenes at trial was when Mrs. Armer presented her husband with a child, born during his confinement.

Afraid of Ghosts

Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are afraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a fancy and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be magnified to a size equal to its terrors it would appear more terrible than any fire-breathing dragon. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe, the water we drink.

The germ can only prosper when the condition of the system gives it free scope to establish itself and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, languor, restlessness, a yellow cheek, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to guard against the germ. You can fortify the body against all germs by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the vital power, cleanses the system of clogging impurities, enriches the blood, puts the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in working condition, so that the germ finds no weak or tainted spot in which to breed. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients printed on its outside wrapper. It is not a secret nostrum but a medicine of known composition and with a record of 40 years of cure. Accept no substitute—there is nothing "just as good." Ask your neighbors.
